Local company Prime Care needs YOU!

A community care company, that has just opened a new office in Hastings, is eager to find new staff – as quickly as possible.

With unemployment rising as many companies cut back on staff in the present recession, Prime Care finds itself with completely the opposite dilemma!

Development Director Nicki Allen is keen to let people know there are jobs available in their award winning company which provides care to help elderly and disabled people stay as independent as possible in their own homes.

Formed in 2001, the company now has offices in Seaford, Brighton, Eastbourne and Hastings and has further expansion plans in the south east.

The Prime Care team has organised a recruitment day and an official opening launch on Friday May 22nd at Walker's Cocktail Bar, opposite their new office in Robertson Street, Hastings, so that anyone interested in a career in care can go along and find out more about what it entails.

“Experience isn't necessary because we provide full training but we need caring, responsible people who are committed to help others in need of care and support. One of the advantages to working in the care industry is that hours are flexible so it can suit those who have other commitments, “ explained Nicki Allen.

Carer John Watt said: “Most people's reaction when I tell them what I do is that they couldn't do a job like this. I feel I do make a difference because I am told that by the people I look after.”

In 2008 Prime Care won the South East England Development Agency (SEEDA) Business Award for Excellence in Skills and Development and it is an Investor in People (IIP) Company.

Anyone interested in finding out more about working in care, is welcome to go along to Walker's Cocktail Bar on Friday May 22nd between 10am and 12 noon then 1pm to 4pm. Refreshments will be provided.
